Please question Source on the following points:

1. The salaries received by Source and his co-workers in the Baku Azerbaijan Industrial Institute, and how these salaries compared with others known to Source.
2. Financing of design projects undertaken by the Institute, with special emphasis on any work related to military projects.
 - a. Who paid for projects undertaken by the Institute? Did any research and/or design money come directly from the Ministry of Defense?
 - b. What sort of control or review was done by the Ministry of Defense?
 - c. How were allocations of money made, i.e. was a certain amount made available for preliminary work and larger amounts appropriated later for a full scale project?
 - d. Was the Ministry of Defense involved in any "pure" or exploratory research done at the Institute?
 - e. If the Ministry of Defense was not directly involved with work at the Institute, does Source have any reason to believe some other group such as a committee under the Council of Ministers was sponsoring projects of a defense nature? If so, how were these financed?
 - f. Was there any indication that different organizations were sponsoring financially different aspects of an individual project? In other words, could money used in developing a single piece of equipment have come from the Ministry of Defense, the Ministry of Defense Production and the Ministry of Aircraft Production?
